a strong wind is blowing. it blows flower seeds high in the air and carries them far across the land One of the seeds is tiny smaller than any of the others will it be able to keep up with the others And where are they all going the warm weather also brings the children out to play they too have been waiting for the sun and spring time one child doesn't see the plants as he runs along - Oh he breaks one now it cannot grow any more

The wind blows harder the flower has lost almost all of its petals it sways and bends away from the wind but the wind grows stringer and shakes the flower once more the wind shakes the flower and this time the flower's seed pod opens out come many tiny seeds that quickly sail far away on the wind
