

This poem is about lockdown,
And how it made us all frown;
Also turning the whole wide world,
Completely upside down.

But do not worry,
As a nation we are strong;
We've come together daily,
With powerful words and song.

Rainbows we drew,
And hung for all to see,
Spreading positivity,
Filling us with glee.

Thursdays, the time for clapping,
Applauding the NHS;
Most days at 4pm,
The government stood to address.

Off out for daily exercise,
Still feeling like I'm in a cocoon,
I stand and breathe in the silence,
It fills me like a balloon.

Staying in, being bored,
Trying to find different things to do;
Grandparents, friends and teachers,
I really do miss you!

This period of time will make history,
Seeing everywhere so still;
Walking and witnessing the emptiness,
It's starting to give me the chill.

For seven weeks, we've had nothing,
No restaurants, no shops, no school;
To stay home, stay safe, save lives,
Is the one simple but important rule.

Oh lockdown, lockdown,
The day will come we wave you goodbye,
As it'll be time for us to go outside,
And enjoy freedom under the big blue sky.
