

History Remembrance for October half term

An important reason for studying history is to appreciate what others have done for us.

You might have a relative who served during World War Two – maybe as a nurse or Land Girl or in the Home Guard or as a soldier

We'd love to know about them – you could tell us in a speech bubble with a photo (like the one below) or you might like to create a PowerPoint about them.

You can see some done in May by Year 6 on the history page of our website.

If you don't have a relative's story you might like to create a poster to explain the different coloured poppies that some people choose to wear using the link below

Or use this link to learn about rationing in World War Two

Lilian from Liverpool

Lilian had a hard time growing up. People were sometimes unkind to her because she was black. She became the first black woman to join the
RAF

Hand in as soon as possible after half term – we will be putting our display together on Friday 6th November
